Corn, white .76
Corn, mixed .75
Oats .40

Chicago Grain.

Chicago, Sept. 26.—Substantial enlargement shown in the world's available stock of wheat led to a setback today in wheat prices here. The market closed heavy 3-8c to 1c net lower, with December at $1.54 1-4 and May at $1.54 3-8c. Corn finished unchanged to 1-2c down; oats off 1-8c to 5-8c and provisions at a decline of 12 1-2c to 50c.

New York Cotton.

New York, Sept. 26.—The cotton market was comparatively quiet today and fluctuations were irregular with January contracts ruling between 16.11c and 16.20c and closed at 16.18c. The general list closed steady at an advance of 3 points to a decline of 1 point as compared with yesterday's final figures.

BRILLIANTS

I look upon indolence as a sort of suicide.—Chesterfield.

Every man seeks for truth; but God only knows who has found it.—Chesterfield.

As scarce as truth is, the supply has always been in excess of the demand.—H. W. Shaw.

However rich or elevated a nameless something is always wanting to our imperfect fortune.—Horace.

Truth does not do so much good in the world as the appearance of it does evil.—La Rochefoucauld.

DONT'S FOR FEMALES

Don't steal a man's good name because you want a husband.

Don't place your hand against your husband, raise a broom handle.

Don't use a gallon of words in trying to express a teaspoonful of thought.

HAD TO WIRE FOR ADDRESS

Englishman Visiting in Paris Took Roundabout Method of Finding Out Where He Lived.

A young Englishman who had a rather treacherous memory went to spend a holiday in Paris. With a little difficulty he sought out a hotel, and, anxious to make the best of his time, he set forth the next morning to have a look at the boulevards. Having spent a few hours there, he would return to his quarters. But to get to the boulevards and then get back to the hotel he soon found were very different things, for, to his great annoyance, he had utterly forgotten the name of the place where he had taken up his abode.

Further, a mere smattering of French was all he knew, and as everyone he encountered appeared to have no knowledge of English, the difficulty of explaining himself seemed insurmountable. At last, to his great joy, he stumbled across a fellow-countryman who, after a little conversation, suggested an ingenious escape from his dilemma.

"By the way," said he, "did you send to your people in England any intimation of your safe arrival last evening?"

"Of course, I did," was the ready reply. "I wrote to my folk at once, as I promised my father I should."

"Then don't you think," remarked the quick-witted Englishman, "that it would be a good idea to wire home and ask them, if they have received your letter, to let you know your address in Paris?"

Absurd though it seemed at first, it was the only thing to be done, and, luckily, his letter had been written on hotel paper. He waited patiently in the telegraph office until he received the welcome intelligence which sent him on his way rejoicing.

COULD NOT BE OVERLOOKED

Good Reason Why Autoist's Action Aroused the Indignation of Public-Spirited Sheriff.

Barney Dureboy's giant Crackard bicycle purred joyously as Barney drove it at a 97 1/2-mile clip along the sandy highway toward Flat Rock, Mich.

"I'd like to see the hecker that can stop me today!" chuckled Barney as he fell off in the town.

But at that moment he observed an individual ahead of him in the center of the road, so busy giving a simultaneous imitation of Paviowna and George M. Cohan that he never even heard the onrushing Crackard bicycle.

Just in the nick of time Barney swung aside and crashed through a hog-tight fence into a meadow, and the next minute Sheriff Weegies dashed up and had him by the collar. "Have a heart, sheriff," protested Barney. "You know dumdamst well you wouldn't even have got my number if I hadn't turned aside to save that poor man's life. A kind deed like that—"

"I don't object to stray chickens being run down, and I don't object to nothing under a hundred miles an hour," said Sheriff Weegies grimly. "When a guy deliberately busts a town property fence last of all, a loafer that's been a burden on the community for eight years, he's a-goin' to get fined good and stiff, he is."—Detroit Free Press.

Writing Up to Rules.

The reporter carried to the city editor's desk the story on which he had toiled two hours. It was an account of the adventures of a cat that, through the mistake of a rural postmaster, had been crated and shipped by parcel post to the city post office.

"It's mighty hard," he confessed to the city editor, "to write up to all the rules I learned at college, particularly that one about avoiding repetition."

The editor glanced through the narrative. The first sentence mentioned the fact that a handsome tortoise-shell cat had been received at the local post office. In the next sentence the reporter had avoided repetition by calling the cat "puss." Then she became successively a tabby, an animal, a feline and a pet. Then the reporter's overworked vocabulary put forth a final spurt, and the item finished triumphantly:

"When the slats were removed from the top, the contents of the crate were found to be suffering from hunger and nearly dead from thirst."—Youth's Companion.

His Chale.

A school teacher in the Italian quarter of Chicago had been telling her pupils certain of the fables of Aesop, and of these the story of the fox and the grapes seemed especially to appeal to one dusky son of Italy.

By a stroke of luck the teacher was enabled to hear the lad give his version to a lad in another class.

In a delicious dialect the boy recounted the fable pretty much as it is written until he reached the climax, which he rendered thus:

"Den de olde fox he say, 'I think da grape no good, anahow. I guess I go getta de banan.'"

One Trial Enough.

In a vandeville boarding house the breakfast table gossip was buzzing. One drug store blonde was bemoaning the stern realities of this life.

"What you should have done," said a juggler, "was to marry and become interested in a domestic existence."

"Rats," she replied. "I did get married one Sunday and it spoiled my pleasure for the day."—New York Sun.
